I have not thought about it at this point but I do not think so with regard to the particular CT at issue but possibly about CTs in general and how he has used them or not used them in the past. Certainly, we would reserve the right to ask him questions about the CT or CTs in general depending on the cross.

Also, I was wrong on the hotel. We are staying at the Springhill Suites (Marriott).

Sorry for the continuing questions, but I just want to be sure we're on the same page. When we discussed the admissibility of the CT scan and opinions that might be offered about it, I don't know if I specifically asked about Dr. Breyer. Do you plan to have Dr. Breyer interpret the CT scan at trial or offer opinions about it?

Thanks,
Sam
